Treasury Head In Favor Of Raising U.S. Limit On Debt

Morgenthau Is For Placing It At Fifty Billion

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—Secretary Morgenthau contends that the limit on the federal debt should be raised to $50,000,000,000 and that the budget should be balanced by reduced expenditures and increased taxes.

Answering a barrage of questions, the treasury secretary told members of the house appropriations committee during hearings on his department's 1941 supply bill:

"I think it (the debt limit) should be raised to $50,000,000,000.

For Expenditures Cut

"Do I think the budget should be balanced? Yes. Do I think expenditures should be cut down? Yes. Do I think taxes should be raised? Yes. But if you say, 'Morgenthau, what kind of taxes should there be?' I can not answer that because I do not know."

The report of the hearings was made public today.

Morgenthau said that if it was up to him he would recommend raising the debt limit from the present $45,000,000,000 and that he would "take another look" at the situation when the figure reached $49,000,000,000.

"I am willing to say now, gentlemen, that there is no particular danger involved if congress would raise the debt limit to $50,000,000,000," Morgenthau told the committee. "Beyond that I would not venture an opinion."

He also expressed the opinion that all federal expenditures such as public works, public roads and reclamation projects should be trimmed or dispensed with temporarily in view of prospective heavy expenditures for defense.

Morgenthau said that his guess was that business conditions should be "at least as good in 1940" as they were last year, although war conditions in Europe

Britons Protest On Blackouts

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(P)—More light to guide the stumbling Briton homeward through blacked-out streets was sought today in parliament.

Traffic fatalities far surpassing Great Britain's war death toll were the basis of the plea.

British and neutral losses of life and property as a result of the war at sea mounted further.

The Greek freighter Ekatonarchos Dracoulis, 5,329 tons, was reported sunk off the Portuguese coast by a German submarine. Six of the crew of 28 were believed killed.

The admiralty today asserted that this Greek vessel and the 1,469-ton Danish steamer Tekla were torpedoed Sunday "without warning" and that "in neither case did the submarine make any attempt to save the lives of the crews."

The stage was set in the house of commons for an attack against the blackout. Newspapers joined in the declaration of a "grumble week."

Members of all parties added complaints against the darkness, asserting 4,133 persons were killed, mostly on highways during four months of the blackout, compared with 2,466 in the eight months preceding the blackout. These sources said more than 2,500 British soldiers and sailors had met death in the war.

Body Of Senator Borah To Idaho

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—For the last time, Senator William E. Borah was on his way home today to Idaho.

After a solemn, brief funeral in the crowded senate chamber, the body of the 74-year-old Republican statesman was placed yesterday aboard a train for Boise, Idaho. There final services will be held in the state capitol Thursday.

A congressional delegation accompanied the gray coffin, and Mrs. Borah and Miss Cora Rubin, the senator's secretary for more than 30 years, were on the train.

Father, Failing To Have Girl In School, Jailed

Hearing Be Given Mack Bodenhamer On Wednesday

Mack Bodenhamer, 820 North Grand avenue, went to the county jail this morning rather than send his 14 year old daughter, Helen, to school. He will have a hearing in the court of Judge C. W. Bente at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The young girl, who is a student in the junior high school has been absent from school since the week before Christmas. When the truant officer, Cecil Glenn, called at the Bodenhamer home he was told that the father was responsible for her absence. He repeatedly refused to permit her to attend school, and late Monday afternoon Glenn asked for, and was given a warrant for his arrest.

Bodenhamer was threatening to police officers who went to his home Monday night to serve the warrant, they assert, and rather than cause any more disturbance than was necessary they did not take him by force, but reported his actions to headquarters. This morning Bodenhamer came voluntarily to the office of the prosecuting attorney Frank W. Hayes, and still refused to send his daughter to school. Mr. Hayes called the police officers, and Bodenhamer was taken to jail.

Last fall Bodenhamer was taken before the prosecuting attorney after he had refused to permit his 7 year old daughter, Ethel to attend school. It was not necessary then to issue a warrant because he was persuaded to permit the child to go to school. She is attending her classes today.

The punishment for an offense, such as Bodenhamer is charged with, is a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $24, confinement in the county jail of not less than two days nor more than ten, or both.

Dr. Haynes Denies Stealing The Love Of Mrs. Willey

SAN RAFAEL, Calif., Jan. 23.—(P)—With considerable emphasis, eighty-four-year-old Dr. Byron Haynes denied today he stole the love of Mrs. Lillian Willey, 37, from her divorced husband who sued the retired dentist for $200,000 damages as a romance-wrecker.

The elderly defendant, his dignity only slightly ruffled, said further he had no intention of marrying the attractive Mrs. Willey, who was divorced from Capt. James H. Willey, 58, last year.

Willey, a retired federal steamship inspector, opened his alienation of affections suit yesterday before a capacity audience in the county supervisors' chamber—the courtroom is being repaired. For more than an hour, Dr. Haynes parried attorneys' questions intended to prove he broke up the Willey home and accusing him of wrecking several other homes on exclusive Belvedere Island.

Before Dr. Haynes could answer concerning the other alleged love thefts, Superior Judge Ed-

Ruling Over Fees For The Probate Judge

J. E. Smith Gets Decision From Supreme Court

The State Supreme Court today allowed Judge J. E. Smith, probate judge of Pettis County, to retain more than $2,500 in fees which accrued during his first term of office, but collected during his succeeding term. It overruled Pettis county's counter claim for the amount, with the statement "fees do not belong to the office but to the officer. The limitation is only on the fees collected and not on fees earned during the year."

The ruling favors Judge Smith on his interpretation of the law relative to fees, which was interpreted otherwise by state auditors in an audit made in 1937.

Case After Audit

The case grew out of a report made by state auditors in 1937, who claimed that Judge Smith owed the county $911.42 fees earned during his first term of office, but collected in his second term. Judge Smith had interpreted the law, as had his predecessors in office, that money earned in one term could be collected after that term provided it did not exceed the total sum of $4,700 annually.

Judge Smith, believing he had conducted the office according to the law, took the matter to the circuit court of Pettis county where Judge Dimmitt Hoffman ruled in his favor.

Acting for the county, Prosecuting Attorney Frank W. Hayes appealed to the supreme court, which today affirmed the decision of the Pettis county circuit court.

Was a Test Action

The case attracted the attention of probate judges over the state, with the result that the

Today's Wonders To Be Demonstrated At The Cooking School

Democrat-Capital Will Sponsor It At The Liberty Theatre January 30 to February 2

Modern homemakers do not have to wait for the World of Tomorrow! Today's miracle world has simplified the art of home-making by showering home managers generously with interesting products and compact equipment designed to save labor, time and temper.

Seldom is it possible for busy homemakers to see these household units together. Still more rare is the opportunity to study a full force of mechanical servants in actual operation and production.

With the aim of serving today's homemakers, the Democrat-Capital has assembled the outstanding developments of scientific ingenuity in an up-to-date kitchen laboratory, which will be open and free to public inspection on four days, January 30th, 31st, February 1st and 2nd.

Jefferson City Wants Rental

Ordinance For Office Building Up To Council

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 23.—An ordinance calling for a $200,000 bond issue election to construct a municipal building to house the unemployment compensation commission offices passed its first legislative phase Monday night at a special meeting of the city council.

The ordinance went before the council carrying the endorsement of the chamber of commerce.

After hearing the ordinance endorsed by Hugh Stephens, president of the Chamber of Commerce, the council sent the measure to the printing and ordinance committee with orders it be returned at a meeting Monday night.

Presentation of the ordinance climaxed a drive started a week ago when the attorney general's office upheld the legality of such action on the part of the city. If passed Monday, a special election will be held February 27 to allow Jefferson City residents to vote on a $200,000 bond issue to be used in the erection of a municipal office building which will be used primarily to house the office of the unemployment commission now seeking bids from other cities.

On the invitation of Mayor Jess Owens, Chamber President Hugh Stephens spoke briefly before the council and C. of C. representatives. He reiterated his belief that it was the city's last chance to raise funds for the building and pointed out that other cities had

Auto Licenses Had Increase

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 23.—(P)—Missourians drove 39,976 more passenger cars and trucks in 1939 than they did the previous year, a report of the state motor vehicle registration department showed today.

Licenses were issued for 734,894 passenger cars and 142,200 trucks and 34,317 trailers. Drivers' licenses went to 811,014 persons, compared with 236,180 in 1938 and chauffeurs and operators' licenses to 84,234 against 76,349.

On the basis of $10.08 per car average license in Missouri, owners of automobiles in Pettis county last year paid the state approximately $81,115, a report by Dwight H. Brown, secretary of state, indicates.

Pettis county had 8,115 passenger cars and trucks in 1939, compared to 7,744 in 1938, the report states. Total registration of both passenger cars and trucks in the state last year was 877,094, an increase of 39,976 over the previous year.

Secretary Brown turned in to the state treasury a total of $10,223,625.05 collected last year through the motor vehicle registration department of his office. This includes fees received from both automobile and drivers' licenses, and represents an increase of $786,791.74, or approximately 8.3 per cent, over 1938, the total for which was $9,436,833.31.

Pettis County Doctors Have Dinner Meet

Neurologist Tells Of Treatment For Dementia Praecox

A treatment for dementia praecox that was discovered accidentally, insulin shock therapy, and a related treatment, the metrazol type, were discussed Monday night at a dinner meeting of the Pettis County Medical Association at the Bothwell hospital by Dr. G. Wilse Robinson, of the staff of the neurological hospital in Kansas City.

With the development of metrazol and insulin shock treatments of insanity, especially of dementia praecox, it is now believed by medical experts that over 50 per cent of insane people formerly condemned to life in institutions can be cured and restored to a useful place in society.

Discovered In Sweden

The insulin shock method was discovered in Sweden when a nurse accidentally gave an overdose of insulin to a diabetic patient who also suffered from dementia praecox, Dr. Robinson said. After the patient recovered from convulsions which followed, he was found to be cured of his insanity.

The case was observed by the doctor in charge, was written up in a medical journal and experiments were made revealing the effects and results of the treatment.

Metrazol was discovered in Vienna when a doctor worked on the observations that epileptics, who have periodic convulsions, never have dementia praecox and that victims of the latter are never epileptic.

These treatments are now widely used in state hospitals for nervous and mental disease patients.

Dr. Robinson showed two reels of moving pictures of the treatments, including administration, effects and end results.

Delirium Tremens Cured

He also spoke on a new treatment of delirium tremens, in which glucose and insulin are administered giving almost immediate relief. In the past, cures have necessitated great care and long hospitalization to bring the patients back to normal.

The venison dinner given by the hospital and the nurses was attended by 20 doctors and about 15 nurses. The venison was furnished by Dr. J. W. Beger.

It was the regular semi-monthly meeting of the society.

Dr. A. L. Walter, president, presided.

Bombing Planes Over Helsinki Are Driven Off

BULLETIN

HELSINKI, Jan. 23.—(P)—Nineteen persons were killed and many injured today when a Soviet bomb made a direct hit on an air raid shelter at the railroad town of Nurmee. Finnish reports said the population later was machine-gunned by Soviet planes.

BY WADE WERNER

HELSINKI, Jan. 23.—(P)—Russian troops trying to break through Finnish defenses northeast of Lake Ladoga are taking a terrific punishment, tonight's Finnish army communique reported.

Casualties were reported to have run into the thousands.

At one point alone, the communique said, at Kollaanjoki in the Loimola district—the enemy left upward of a thousand dead in the past two days.

Planes Driven Off

On the Karelian isthmus front artillery action from both sides continued, and the war was brought again to Helsinki this afternoon with the approach of Russian bombing planes.

The planes were driven off by Finnish anti-aircraft fire.

An air alarm sounded at 2:30 p. m. (6:30 a. m. CST) but the all clear signal came half an hour later.

Members of the American legation staff at nearby Grankulla heard the bombers pass but no bombs were dropped there.

Baltic Fleet Suffers

According to dispatches from Latvia published in the newspapers here the Russian Baltic fleet has taken heavy punishment in the first eight weeks of the war, especially considering the fact that naval activity has been practically frozen up during the past two weeks.

The Red fleet has lost three destroyers, a number of auxiliary vessels and a battleship, these dispatches said, and the battleship October Revolution was damaged in port and the cruiser Kiroff was put out of commission at least for several months.

In addition two submarines and four minesweepers are reported to have been sunk by mines.

On the other hand, the Red fleet has sunk two German and two Finnish vessels, one Estonian merchant ship and also several Estonian fishing boats.

No Advance To WPA Workers

The Washington office of Col. Harrington, Works Progress Administrator, informed Congressman R. T. Wood of Springfield, Sixth District, Monday that the law does not permit issuing checks to WPA workers in advance.

Wood, in a telegram to The Democrat said he had urged Col. Harrington to advance the WPA workers of Missouri one month's check "in order that the misery and suffering caused by the shutdown (due to the severe winter making many projects impossible) will be alleviated until warmer weather prevails."

However, Wood said, "orders have been issued to State Administrators permitting them to allow the workers to make up 130 hours of lost time instead of 65 as former."

"This order will be in vogue until June 30 which will allow WPA workers to draw larger monthly checks after February 1. The commodities surplus corporation has also doubled the allotment to those in need. I am advised there is no other legal way to relieve the present situation."

Wood said he had received hundreds of letters and telegrams from throughout the state urging that something be done to start the projects.

Frill-less Homes
Leave out the fancy trimmings, and maybe you can get a comfortable home for yourself this year. In fact, the Federal Housing Administration predicts that most of the family dwellings constructed this year will cost less than $4000, with a good many costing less than $3000.

To do this, the FHA says, builders will have to be satisfied with plain comfort. Frills are out. The houses don't need to be ugly, but solid and utilitarian.

Most people who badly require better living conditions won't mind. They want houses for what they can afford to pay. If they can get them for $3000 and $4000, they won't mind if a little scroll work must be eliminated here and there.

Forecasting Length Of Life
Scientists indicate that medical men of the Studies by two Johns Hopkins University future may be able to determine the length of a man's normal life by the rate of his heart beat.

It is much too early to work out any mathematical table. Drs. Raymond Pearl and W. Edwin Moffett, the researchers, aren't even sure that the heart beat has anything to do with length of life. But in poring over insurance records, they have sensed a possible relationship between the two.

For the benefit of most of us, it might be just as well if the scientists just let the matter drop where it is. It is doubtful whether any good can come out of knowing how long one will live. It might be discouraging to know that you have exactly 30 years left, barring an unforeseen plunge down the side of a mountain or something like that.

In England, the average age for men is 32 years, for women 34. In 1931, the ages were 31.8 for men and 33.5, respectively.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

(Editor's Note—One of the Merry-Go-Rounders, a close friend of Senator William E. Borah, today tells a personal story.)

WASHINGTON — The Senate just doesn't seem the same without Senator Borah.

He was the first leader I came to know intimately as a cub Washington reporter fifteen years ago, and I saw him last day before his fatal accident. I think I am the last newsman he talked to.

It was late in the afternoon. I knew that the President's message on the Finnish loan was due the next day, and I dropped into Borah's office to get his views. Wrapped in an army blanket, he was lying on a couch, reading an article on trade treaties. He motioned me to a chair, which I pulled up near him. On the marble mantle directly over him was a striking new photograph of himself which he liked very much.

Borah looked well, but frail, and recalling that during the Christmas holidays he had told me he was thinking of taking Mrs. Borah south, I said, "What about your trip?"

"I guess that's off, Robert," he replied. "Mrs. Borah won't stay if I don't, and I can't."

"Why not? Things aren't so active now. A few weeks of warm weather and sunshine would do you a lot of good."

"Yes, but I can't leave. Those trade treaties are up and I've got to be on hand to keep an eye on developments. It's a close fight and we can't take any chances. I would like a little rest, but I feel it's my duty to stay on the job and oppose this act."

"What about this Finnish loan?" I asked.

"That's a very distressing dilemma, for me, Robert," he said. "My heart goes out to those gallant people, but at the same time I have grave misgivings about lending money to anyone in Europe. Once we let down the bars we can't foresee what it may lead to. We must keep out of that mess regardless of our personal sympathies."

1936 Dilemma
I remember another time when he was in a dilemma. It was in 1936.

That spring, at the age of 71 and for the first time in his long career, he decided to make a serious try for the presidency. There was considerable popular response, but the machine politicians were against him. He went to the Cleveland convention empty-handed—and he knew it.

The night Herbert Hoover made his speech—which he secretly hoped would stampede the delegates—I encountered Borah leaving his hotel. It was past midnight, hot and sticky.

"Come along, Robert, and walk with me," he said. "It's cooler out here."

So we walked about the deserted streets and he talked about Hoover, the convention, and Alf Landon.

"They'll nominate Landon tomorrow," he said. "The stage is all set. Hoover tried to run away with the convention tonight, but they don't want any of him. It will be Landon and Knox, you mark my word."

"And then what are you going to do, Senator?"

"I don't know. I'll wait and see what Landon says. But what I'm wondering is what can he say. He knows nothing about national or foreign affairs. I am told he is a nice gentleman, but the country needs more than that in the White House in these times. I don't want to prejudice Landon. I shall hear him out, but I have a strong hunch I will not support him."

Borah's premonition was right. Three months later I spent a day with him in Boise as he campaigned for his sixth senatorial term. We had a long talk that night in his room before he retired. I remarked that I hadn't heard him say a word during the day about Landon.

"And I don't intend to say anything about him," Borah replied quietly. "I am not for him."

"Are you for Roosevelt?"

"Well, Robert," he said, "I've got a lot of Democratic friends in Idaho and I think they know where I stand." And then with a pretty smile he added, "That's a good news story, isn't it?"

It certainly was. It was the big scoop of the campaign.

No Hazing
All the New Deal Supreme Court justices attended the White House ceremony when Justice Frank Murphy took the oath of office. As the President shook Murphy's hand he observed solemnly:

"Frank, I've got it all fixed up for you. The sophomores on the Court have promised me that they won't have the freshman."

White House Receptions
The White House social list is not as exclusive as you might suppose. If you want to be on the list, you don't have to wait to be chosen. All you've got to do is to drive up to the front door and, in effect, tell 'em you want an invitation.

This is strictly according to the rules of protocol. Nothing brash about it. You come up to the door and hand your cards to one of the White House guards, as if you were going to pay a call. In fact, this amounts to paying a call. And in return, you will get an invitation to a tea, a musicale, or a garden party.

The mechanics of the business are like this: The guard passes your cards to the footman, who clips them together and puts them in a basket inside the door. Secretaries make up a list from them, hoping you have not forgotten to scribble your address on the card so they will know where to send the invitation.

The list goes to Mrs. James M. Helm, efficient social secretary of the White House, who does a little culling of the names she and associates cannot identify. Then the invitations go out. You have in effect asked for an invitation—and got it.

Exclusive Parties
Of course, the invitation will not be for an evening reception, for which the lists are more official and exclusive. To rate a reception, you have to be a diplomat, a member of Congress, a departmental executive, a high ranking officer of the Army or Navy (officers below the rank of lieutenant colonel and commander are excluded), or, as a last chance, a member of the press.

On a still higher plane of exclusiveness are White House dinners. Formal dinners are given in the state dining-room for visiting rulers, such as the King and Queen of England; and others, less formal, to which an odd miscellany of people are invited—church dignitaries, newspaper editors, social planners, and campaign contributors.

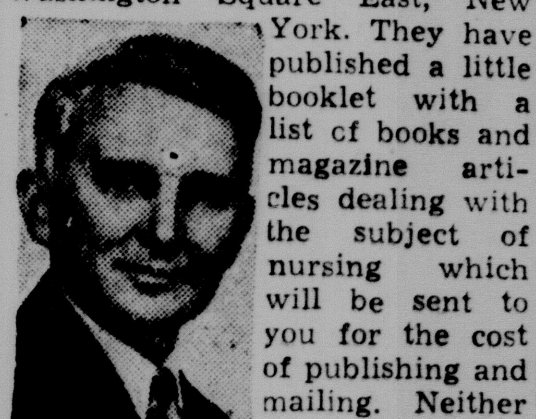

Most intimate Roosevelt dinners are held in the family dining-room, especially the Sunday evening suppers, where Mrs. Roosevelt prepares scrambled eggs in a chafing dish for people she can call by their first names—Henry and Eleanor Morgenthau, Henry and Ilo Wallace, Caroline O'Day, Sam Rosenman, Oscar Chapman, "Missy" LeHand.

Intimate or otherwise, there are always guests at the White House. If the President and Mrs. Roosevelt should find themselves alone at the dinner table, they would scarcely know how to behave.

DALE CARNEGIE
Author of "How To Win Friends And Influence People"

Girls, if you would like to know your chances as a trained nurse, send 25 cents to the Occupational Index, Inc., New York University, Washington Square East, New York.

They have published a little booklet with a list of books and magazine articles dealing with the subject of nursing which will be sent to you for the cost of publishing and mailing. Neither New York University nor any individual will make a cent from your purchase. How much money can you make if you enter the nursing profession? This booklet says:

"According to figures gathered in 1927, the 'typical private duty nurse' averaged about $1,311 per year. The Nursing Information Bureau of the American Nurses' Association believes this figure to be too high for 1937 and prefers to say that nurses working on an eight hour schedule earn on an average of $5,000 a year. A higher daily salary is paid to nurses working more than eight hours and to those caring for special types of illnesses. In institutional work salaries range from $720 a year plus maintenance for general staff nurses, to $3,600 a year plus maintenance for hospital superintendents. In public health nursing, the average salary paid to staff nurses in 1935 was $1,500. Executive salaries range from $1,800 in small agencies to $6,000 in the largest."

Here's what is said about the kinds of nursing:

"There are five principal fields of employment for nurses: (1) private duty, (2) institutional service, (3) public health, (4) education and (5) federal services. In addition there are many minor and related fields of employment for the registered nurse."

What are the advantages and disadvantages of the nursing profession? Here they are:

"Nursing presents a challenge to individuals who like to work with people and who have ideals of service and a liking for the study necessary to keep up with the advance of the medical and social sciences. The advantages of the profession include the interesting contacts which it affords with people in all walks of life, and the opportunities it offers to help people. The nursing profession feels its responsibility for helping nurses to secure the type of positions for which they are best qualified and nursing placement bureaus exist in all parts of the country."

"Disadvantages include the lack of steady employment in private duty nursing, and the low salaries coupled with the long hours and hard work which prevail in some institutions. A substantial proportion of nurses still works 12 hours a day, although the present trend is toward an eight hour shift. Occasionally private nurses are on 24 hour duty for days or weeks, sleeping when and as they get the chance."

Educational requirements and the cost of some vary in different localities, but information can be obtained by writing to the Nursing Information Bureau, 50 West 50th Street, New York City. The Bureau will answer any inquiries about nursing as a profession. The National Association of Colored Graduate Nurses at the same address will also answer inquiries.

Parental Diplomacy Needed For Child Who Has 'Enemy'

By Olive Roberts Barton
If a child has an enemy, should we: (a) Try to make peace? (b) Go to the other child's mother? (c) Tell Johnny to treat the other one well? (d) Convince with him to get even?

Try (a) first, (c) second. (B) is absolutely necessary and (D) not at all.

Every child has an enemy or two. Maybe it's just Sister, jealous of our Susy's new mittens. Maybe it's Bill the Bully, who likes to make our Junior turn pale and run.

Whoever it is or whatever the reason, it isn't a bad idea for a child to know that every other child isn't a Mary Jane Friendly or a Santa Claus.

Too bad to disillusion these little souls about the cold world and the people in it, and shake their faith in the milk of human kindness, but I guess it has to come sometime.

The point is this, however. Even children have to learn that there are certain uncomfortable moments in life. And I say it is helpful for them to discover a knobby hunk in the soft mattress of life, or a little trace of sour in his candy.

Tell Susy not to pay any attention to Sis when she sticks out her tongue, knocks Sue's book off the desk and walks off with her best friend.

Maybe Susy will try to bribe back this child's good will by giving her something or even offering to exchange mittens.

Why should she? Next time, if Sis is the type I think she is, the price will go up. The really jealous child has been known to persist long after the real reason is forgotten.

Maybe Sue isn't so soft, at that, and needs no advice. Some children can deal with an "enemy" in ways known only to themselves, and come out plus a friend and a victory, to our everlasting envy.

Let Junior Try To Fight Own Way
I should not let Bill the Bully carry his meanness too far, if he is a real bully and picks only on the ones he thinks won't fight.

See what Junior can do for himself, first. If Bill only calls a name or two and makes a face, let it go. If it amounts to real persecution, tell Junior to stop running. I hope he can lick Bill.

But maybe you'll have to mention to Bill that things aren't square. Don't lose your temper. And don't take Junior's part before other boys. That's fatal.

SERIAL STORY

BLACKOUT

BY RUTH AYERS

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Vincent summoned Mary. He is in a jam, realizes Scotland Yard is hunting him. He begs her to come with him. They ride out to London to a small airport. A plane is waiting. Vincent paints an attractive word picture of a honeymoon in the desert. Mary begs him to stay and face punishment. He drags her to the plane.

CHAPTER XXV
MARY drew back with new-found strength.

"Vincent, you're playing the part of a fugitive. You'll be hunted down, perhaps killed. I'm willing to wait for you. You can't escape. You owe it to yourself to stay! You owe it to me!"

He turned and there was something in his face she had never seen there before. In review, everything came into focus. She thought—he's a soldier, yes, but willing to fight for the cause that pays most. He's likeable and charming but there's nothing behind it. No matter where he flies, there'll always be a day of reckoning just over the horizon. And some day he won't be lucky enough to escape it.

"There's not another second to spare. Coming with me?"

She stared at him. "Please—for my sake," she tried to say.

He shook off her hand from his arm. "So long," he said almost jauntily, "I love you, but I'd rather face a firing squad than stay here a prisoner. If you won't go with me, I'm going alone."

As a mechanic stepped out of the plane, Vincent leaped in, pulling on helmet and goggles. The plane taxied along the runway and then lifted, its wings at sharp angles against the morning sun.

Standing there motionless, Mary knew then that when he went, some part of her life went with him. Always, she'd remember the way he'd smiled and the crooked lift of his eyebrow. He loved her—the gay part of it—the carefree part.

She knew, too, that Vincent had planned all this. The borrowed car, the waiting plane. He'd even used her to shield his getaway. Yes, he'd rather die than be imprisoned. Perhaps he was in this spy plot deeper than she knew. But even if he were, she could never hate him—she could only pity him.

TURNING toward Vincent's car, Mary saw another auto pulling down the sandy road. Startled, she thought it was a Scotland Yard patrol. Instead, she began to tremble when she saw Gilbert Lenox's red head.

She ran towards him, her arms outstretched. "Oh, Gilbert," she cried. "You're the one person in all the world I want to see most. Vincent's gone. I couldn't stop him."

"I know," Gilbert put her head against his shoulder. "As soon as you walked out of the hospital, I knew I had to follow you, foolish, loyal little idiot that you are. I kept track of you when you joined Vincent at the tobacco shop. There were some awful minutes when I thought you might weaken and try to go with him. But when I guessed his destination was this air field, something told me you would stay behind."

Mary broke down in the comforting protection of Gilbert's strong arms. "I'll have to go to Scotland Yard at once," she began in a strangled voice. "It's my fault that Vincent got away."

"Come on," Gilbert said gently, "although I've a hunch you don't have to worry. The morning papers are filled with your wonderful feat. You're England's heroine today—and I'm proud you have my name."

She could only stare at him, all her heart looking out of her eyes. She'd wanted to spare him this hateful publicity—and here he was, glowing with pride in her.

In Inspector Babcock's office, it was as busy as it had been hours before in the excitement of Carla Marchetta's capture.

The inspector saw Mary and beckoned to her. "My dear, I know what you're going to tell me. Vincent Gregg got away—but it's not your fault. And it really doesn't matter for the present. The Registry is saved and we've had a full confession from Felix, the Marchetta woman's real confederate. There's time enough to get the other members of the ring."

He leaned closer, his eyes fast on her. "Because of the great service you've done for us, we were prepared to do nothing worse to your sweetheart than to exile him. And now he's done that himself."

"Thank you!" Mary's head dropped. No time now to explain to Inspector Babcock that Vincent was no longer her sweetheart. Her last loyalty to him had ended when he'd waved goodbye from the plane.

GILBERT was waiting for her in his car outside. "All set?" and he was smiling.

Joy at the sight of him overflowed in Mary. This red-headed doctor was so strong, so steady, so exactly everything that a real man should be.

"It's like coming home," she sighed as she leaned against him. "You bet it is," Gilbert said huskily. "I've loved you right from the start—in the air raid that first night and from the minute you were brought into the hospital as Anna Winters."

Anna's name brought a thousand memories flooding back. Anna Winters, the dear, gentle English girl who'd died on the Moravia. But Anna, dead, had lived on in the happiness she'd taken brought to the girl who'd taken her name.

"No time for tears," Gilbert was saying, his handkerchief patting her cheeks.

If all Scotland Yard had been looking from the windows, he wouldn't have cared as he bent to kiss her.

As if it had been a signal, sun broke through the London fog. "Happy is the bride," Mary murmured, "the sun shines on."

No blackout could ever blot out her happiness again.

Keith Okayed For K. C. Mayor

Charles S. Keith

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The City Council voted 5-1 last night in favor of Charles S. Keith as acting mayor.

All the Shannon and Pendergast organization members and Jerome Galvin voted for Keith. Ted O'Sullivan, who with Galvin and R. Dinwiddie Grove, represented former Mayor Bryce Smith's choices on the council, voted "no" because he thought the mayor should be a member of the council.

Groves said he felt the same as O'Sullivan but Keith was a personal friend and he did not want to vote against him. He did not vote.

Keith, former lumber and coal executive, was offered the post by the organization men, who control the council. Smith resigned after a squabble over appointment of a city manager and city counselor.

Miss Boston Speaks To Club Members On English Schools

Sedalia's most called-upon speaker, Miss Maude Merrick Boston, an exchange teacher from England, gave a fluent, informal talk on the English school system and the customs of her native land, touching upon conditions there since the war, at the regular meeting of Sorosis Monday afternoon at the Heard Memorial clubhouse.

On short notice Miss Boston filled the place of the scheduled speaker, Floyd C. Shoemaker of Columbia, secretary of the state historical society.

Miss Boston entered the school system here from a girls' grammar school in Louth, Lincolnshire, in an exchange with Miss Ruth Fults. She is serving as instructor in art at Broadway school.

There are few private schools in England, she revealed, and there the public schools, counter to ours, are very expensive and exclusive. This is the type of school the king, his brothers and other members of the royal family have attended. As early as the tenth century a British king set aside a certain sum of money for a seat of learning. In those early days only the male members of the family were educated.

She said that the elementary school in her country can be likened to our grade schools and the secondary to our high schools. If a student proves especially apt in his studies he may win a scholarship and be admitted free to the secondary school.

With the completion of the last "form" or year in the secondary school the students take either the Oxford or the Cambridge examination, prepared by these universities. These examinations must be successfully passed for acceptance for employment in government offices and banks. There are three vacation periods, four weeks at each Christmas and Easter, and eight weeks in the summer. There are very few co-educational schools in England, and all schools require the students to wear uniforms. Miss Boston commented on various phases of English life and remarked that the presence of fog in London is overdrawn by travelers.

With a background of cultural and historical information, Miss Boston's comments are always interesting and her style of delivery distinctive. The soft rise and fall of the inflections of her pure English speech fascinate those who hear her. She has spoken before many groups in Sedalia and Pettis county since her arrival here last September.

Mrs. E. W. Brubaker, president, presided over the meeting. Miss Mattie Montgomery, of the mathematics department of Smith-Cotton high school, will speak on "Calendar Reform" at the meeting next Monday at Sorosis.

Rosalee Gardner entertained several seventh grade girls of Horace Mann school at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Gardner, 1918 South Stewart, Friday after school, at which time a handkerchief shower was given in honor of Irene Galbraith who is leaving for Springfield, Mo., to make her home.

Games and contests were held and refreshments of ice cream and cookies were served by Elneta Marshall and Rosalee Gardner to the following: Irene Galbraith, Shirley Bottoms, Evelyn James, Dorothy Witte, Evelyn Keel, Delores Bouton, Doris Shoemaker, Kathryn Holler, Betty Lee Mattox, Elneta Marshall and Rosalee Gardner.

Guests of the Democrat-Capital will watch a trained specialist using the latest conveniences that are enabling women to triumph over such persistent enemies as back-breaking toil and nervous anxiety about culinary success.

In the words of the home economics authority, Mrs. George Thurn, who will play the dual role of friendly hostess and competent demonstrator at the Cooking School:

"Modern science has relieved mental as well as physical discomfort in the kitchen by taking the guess-work out of cookery. That applies to laundry, too."

The Perfect Meal Mrs. Thurn believes that the dream of fair women everywhere is to produce the perfect meal, from savory soup to fragrant coffee and still remain charming and untroubled. And we all enjoy our beer.

It's in beer we find contentment
When the hard day's work is done
For in beer there's keen enjoyment
With good fellowship and fun.
It's a tonic for the weary
It's refreshment for the thirst
It's the kind of stimulation
That makes happiness come first.

Take myself—I'm all for Sterling
Made the good old-fashioned way
In the state of Indiana
In the good old U. S. A.
Where they add no sweets or sugar
To the grain the farmers grow
Where they bottle beer that's wholesome
And the calories are low.

So God bless the land I live in
Where there's peace instead of fight
May our beer be always mellow
And our lights be ever bright
May we keep our bread and butter
Topped with good old home-made jam
And keep loyalty a-living
In our hearts for Uncle Sam.

NO SUGAR... OR GLUCOSE... OR FATTENING SYRUPS ADDED

Champion Ellis To Make Debut Tonight Against Murray

Final Trials With MBC Of Kansas City To Attract Large Attendance

Chester Ellis, international Golden Gloves champion, of Kansas City will make his 1940 debut in Sedalia tonight at convention hall when he meets Dean Murray, Sedalia's bantamweight in the main event of the evening. These bouts tonight are the final trials for the Sedalia Golden Gloves and they will, after tonight, prepare for Central Missouri's Fourth Annual Golden Gloves tournament to be held January 29-30 and February 1.

Ellis in all his fame and glory is still a youngster to the ring and it has never caused any ill-effects on the boxer. He fights in a trial bout the same as a championship bout and respects the best of sportsmanship. Then too, one must consider the little bantamweights record, he had not been hanging up such a bad record, he likewise is one of the best sportsman in the game and these two boxers should present an excellent bout tonight.

Denver "Buck" Miller, Sedalia's flyweight champion, meets one of the coming flyweights in Kansas City in Joey Lafferty. Lafferty is making a good record for himself and does a neat job of boxing one which pleases his coaches.

In spite of Harry Mills record in Kansas City, J. C. "Jake" De Jarnette requested he be matched with the Tournament of Champions champion, Harry Mills. De Jarnette is experiencing his first real year of boxing and is continually showing improvement.

The experience with a bout with Mills will no doubt be a lesson of value to him in the coming tournament.

Eli Castro, also a Kansas City champion comes to Sedalia in an exhibition bout with Joe Car-sello of Kansas City. Castro, the threat of the bantamweight division in 1939 is now entering the featherweight division.

Other matches are to be completed tonight when these Kansas City boys "tip" the scales and their weights compared with local and Marshall boxers, Paul Rodriguez, Patsy Ancona, and Larry Burns.

Sedalia's to be on the card are John Staraka, Louis Bale, Billy Wilson, Sid Dahlstedt, Everett Pickering, Melvin Caldwell, Sam Tuck of Houstonia, Mike Tuck of Marshall, Donald Barr, Virgil Thorp, and Theodore Gorham, the latter colored.

Colored boys from Sedalia are Lillard Sims, Thomas Sims and Henry Barker.

Harker is scheduled against Jack Haley, one of the featherweight champions of Kansas City. Haley has won the Kansas City Star championship and is a threat again this year.

The fights tonight will start at 8:30 o'clock and tickets can be obtained at the Democrat-Capital offices until 5:30 o'clock this afternoon.

'Dizzy' Sends Contract Back Second Time

Must Be In Form To Get Increase On Offer Made

By TOM SILER

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The salad days are over for the onetime Dizzy Dean until he can prove on the pitching mound that he isn't just another has-been.

Phil Wrigley, who signs the checks of the Chicago Cubs, made this clear yesterday on receipt of Dean's unsigned contract for the second time. Accompanying the document was a long letter which attempted to explain to some extent Dean's ineffectiveness in 1939.

"We aren't paying out any more on past performances," said Wrigley. "We're paying Dean for what we expect in the future."

Dean collected $41,000 for winning 13 games the past two years—seven in 1938 and six in 1939. The big right-hander asserted in Dallas recently the Cubs have offered him $10,000 for 1940.

Must "Win Way"
In other words, Dizzy, at the present reading, is just another guy named Joe on the Cub roster and can win his way into the upper salary brackets only in one way—by fooling the enemy batter as he used to do. Dizzy's fall is illustrated all too clearly by the fact that from 1932 through 1936 he averaged winning 24 games a season for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Wrigley wanted it understood that there was no bitterness in the club's negotiations with Dean, who has had a sore arm ever since the Cubs acquired him in April, 1938.

"Dean's letter was swell," Wrigley said. "He gave me several reasons why he thought he would be okay this year."

The letter said, among other things, that:

He was getting too much publicity on his salary tangle; there has been a state of confusion on the Cub team ever since he joined it; too many doctors and theorists were meddling with his sore arm all last year and that he recently had an impacted wisdom tooth extracted.

Cub officials have indicated there will be no meddling with Dizzy's arm this year and that he is strictly on his own.

Wrigley left the impression that he would probably work out an agreement with Dizzy whereby his salary could be upped during the season if Dean regains his winning form.

Then comes the pause that refreshes

St. Louis Is Destination Of 100 Coaches

Jobhunters Mob Washington And St. Louis Universities

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The grass apparently looks greener on the other side of the fence to more than 100 football coaches who are trying to land jobs at Washington and St. Louis universities.

Job hunters are so numerous someone suggested putting a bounty on them.

The vacancies occurred at both institutions ten days ago when coaches Jimmy Conzelman and Cecil Muellerleile resigned almost simultaneously. However, neither man was aware of the others' plans.

Was Forced Out
Conzelman, a veteran of eight years at Washington charged he was "forced out" by a powerful "downtown" group hollering for a team of national reputation—not satisfied that the Bears won the Missouri Valley Conference title last year.

Jim's salary was said to have been between $6,000 and $7,000 last year. Muellerleile reportedly received $4,000 at St. Louis U, a Catholic school and the junior member of the Missouri Valley circuit.

The scramble for their jobs has taken on something of a "field day" complexion, with more than 70 applicants at St. Louis U and 30 or more at Washington.

Neither school would release the full list of names. Many of the candidates, however, are regarded as "small fry."

Sutherland Tops Applicants
Heading the string of possible "big time" successors to Conzelman is Dr. John (Jock) Sutherland, who coached several great teams at Pittsburgh university. He conferred with Washington officials Sunday; said he liked the setup but did not disclose his terms.

Sam Dagley, for nine years line coach at Gonzaga university, was here recently looking over the St. Louis U situation. Jack Chevigny, former Notre Dame star and more recently coach at Texas university, was reported seeking the post. Others mentioned include W. J. (Duke) Duford of St. Ambrose College, Davenport, Ia., and Tom (Kitty) Gorman, former line coach at Creighton.

Manager For Montanez Has Confidence

Negro Champ Winds Up Work For Title Defense Wednesday

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Lew Burston, the linguistic expert of the fight managers, was wondering today in every one of the eight languages in his repertoire.

Lew is the short dark fellow who can speak a wider variety of tongues than any other fight manager along Bash boulevard. Most of them go pretty well in English and French and German, and a majority can holler more than "they can't hurt us" in yiddish.

But Lew knows no geographical bounds. His fighters have come from Greece and Rumania, France and the Philippines. In every case Lew has found a common tongue in which he and his punch-tossers can get together.

Disagrees With Betting Men
Now Lew is going right down the vocabulary in every language concerning Wednesday night's fight in Madison Square Garden in which Henry Armstrong defends his world welterweight championship against the challenge of Puerto Rico.

"How," he wondered in English today, "he wondered in English today, "can these odds layers make Henry a 1 to 3 favorite over my boy Pedro?"

Lew can't see how "my boy Pedro" can miss. The betting men can.

"All you hear around town," Lew went on, "is how Armstrong is going to chase Pedro right out of the Garden and up 49th street past Jacobs beach. They say my boy has a little 'kyoodle' in him. Well, when did he ever show it. They say Armstrong is looking ahead to defending his title against Al Davis this spring, and beyond that, to vacating the crown so that he can meet Ceferino Garcia for the middleweight championship later.

Predict A Surprise
"Well, they must be daffy. Here's Pedro with the same record against Lew Ambers as Henry—each split two decisions. Who else whipped Pedro badly? And who knocked him out? He's a strong puncher and he can fight. Yes, sir, the folks are in for a surprise Wednesday."

There was no answer at the moment, although the rival camp of Henry the Hammer, large Eddie Mead, the champ's pilot, didn't seem particularly worried. His great little Negro battler wound up training in fine style, a trifle slower than when he was three-division champion but an even deadlier puncher.

Montanez also finished working today "in the pink." He wound up with several rounds of light action, and confidently shouted he would "drop Armstrong and those long odds right in the bookmakers' laps."
